Before LOKEN, MELLOY, and GRUENDER, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

In this 42 U.S.C. § 1983 action, Arkansas inmate Bobby Williams appeals following the district court's¹ grant of summary judgment in favor of Sheriff Ron Brown. On appeal, Williams renews his claims that he suffered health problems as a result of exposure to black mold in the shower and air vents while he was confined at the Crawford County Detention Center, and that he endured cold temperatures and humiliation when he was walked across the street to go to court. Following careful de novo review, we agree with the district court that the alleged presence of black mold was not a constitutional violation because "an outside agency . . . inspected and found no mold present," and that Williams's brief exposure to cold temperatures and the public view while he was made to cross the street to the courthouse did not amount to a constitutional violation. See Mack v. Dillon, 594 F.3d 620, 622 (8th Cir. 2010) (per curiam) (standard of review); Owens v. Scott Cnty. Jail, 328 F.3d 1026, 1027 (8th Cir. 2003) (per curiam) (discussing unconstitutional conditions of confinement).

Accordingly, the judgment is affirmed. See 8th Cir. R. 47B.
